Sometimes working with a school, a human services provider, or both will sufficiently meet the needs of families with children with disabilities. Children with complex needs often require supports and services across environments including home, school, and community. In situations of high need, it may be helpful to coordinate the services and supports of the family’s extended network of family and friends, community members, and service providers. Many families with children who have disabilities are eligible for and entitled to coordination of services.

A Coordinated Services Plan (CSP) can be developed for:

- Children or adolescents who are on an IEP for Emotional Disturbance that impacts his or her academic progress of family or interpersonal relationships.
- Children or adolescents who have a disability and who are eligible for or who are receiving services and service coordination from a regional Agency of Human Services program.

What is Coordinated Services Planning?

Developing a coordinated services plan (CSP) involves an interagency team including family members and service providers. Each team is a unique combination of persons, specific to the youth and family. The team’s purpose is to explore the child and family’s strengths and needs across settings and to develop and implement an effective CSP.

This includes:
- Deciding on goals
- Identifying what is needed to meet those goals
- Writing and implementing the plan
- Coordinating changes over time.

One service provider serves as the lead person to monitor the plan’s implementation in a coordinated, timely, and effective manner.

What if the CSP is not Satisfactory?

Most teams develop CSP’s that are then implemented. If, however, a team is unable to find a way to agree upon or implement a plan, with parent or guardian permission, anyone on the team may call upon the Local Interagency Team (LIT Team) for assistance when needed to address complex issues or help resolve problems.

What if the Local Interagency Team is unable to resolve the situation?

On occasion, a Local Interagency Team (LIT) may not be able to fully resolve the situation so a referral to the State Interagency Team (SIT) may be needed. This Team acts much as the Local Interagency Team does to review a plan; make recommendations on content, strategies, or sources of support. The State Interagency Team can also commit funds to allow for creative solutions. Neither the Local Interagency Team nor the State Interagency Team can order any agency to provide particular services, however we will work within the boundaries of your regulations and funding sources to provide services.
